

The basin, which occupies more than sixty percent of the entire country, receives more than eighty inches (about 200cm) of rain a year due to its hot and humid subtropical climate.
The Brazilian Highlands contrast starkly with the meandering jungle rivers; their rugged, snow-
-capped peaks resemble another world.

The  which 60% of the entire , receives eighty  (about 200cm) of  a due to The    starkly
with the  ; their
,  resemble .